Wynmoor Film Golden Swans Wins At The "Filmed in Broward" Festival

By Kim Lykins

Producer and Wynmoor Short Film Festival Director, Enid Wolf-Schein

Golden Swans and Music of China, which premiered at the Wynmoor Short Film Festival on February 1, 2019, were selected as entries in the "Filmed in Broward" Festival, held on August 17th and 18th at the Savor Cinema in Fort Lauderdale.

Golden Swans won top honors for "Best Documentary" and will be screened again at the Fort Lauderdale International Film Festival in November, which will feature films from all over the world. Many of the "cast members" from the Friday morning ballet class were highlighted in the film.

Music of China, featuring Ken and Juliana Wan, was also shown at "Filmed in Broward." There was great interest in this film as well, and Enid and Marcus had a wide-ranging discussion with the audience about it. When asked why she made this film, Enid replied, "because I wanted to see it. Featuring the music of Ken and Juliana was a joy. Their music needs to be heard and experienced."

Musicians Ken and Juliana Wan

The 1st Wynmoor Short Film Festival featured 12 films and was a resounding success, selling out quickly. All of the films that were shown were produced by Wynmoor residents. This year, three filmmakers from Broward County, who have produced some compelling short films, have been asked to participate as well.

The 2nd Annual Wynmoor Short Film Festival will be hosted by the Documentary & Discussion Club, under the Presidency of Betsy Kalau and is scheduled for March 27th at 7:00 PM. About 10 short films will be screened and a reception will follow in the Country Club Ballroom featuring wine and popcorn. There will also be some surprise entertainment.

Films for the 2nd Annual Wynmoor Short Film Festival are currently being sought. All those interested should contact Enid Wolf-Schein at enid.wsff@gmail.com

Hopefully, several of the Wynmoor Short Film Festival entries will be a part of next year's "Filmed in Broward" Festival. This Festival is funded in part by the Broward County Board of County Commissioners, as recommended by the Broward Cultural Council and Greater Fort Lauderdale Convention and Visitors Bureau. It is sponsored in part by the State of Florida, Department of State, Division of Cultural Affairs, and The Florida Council on Arts & Culture, and promotes Broward-based filmmakers and independent films shot in the county. It is produced by the Fort Lauderdale International Film Festival.

Here's what Wynmoor residents are already asking about the 2020 Wynmoor Short Film Festival:

Q: What can we look forward to in the 2020 Wynmoor Short Film Festival?

A: The line-up is open for entries from residents until mid-February. Information on how to submit a film and other requirements is on flyers located in the Country Club Library. We are open to any interesting short film, under 20 minutes. Our team does have some things brewing. For example, we are writing some really short, shorts called Senior Moments, illustrating what could be happening around Wynmoor at any moment. Also, we want to provide a look at what you can experience during a visit to the NSU Art Museum in downtown Fort Lauderdale.

Q: What is your incentive for promoting a Film Festival at Wynmoor?

A: We have a Festival of the Arts, and we have a Dance Troupe that includes all types of musical and dance talent, but we never had a way to show films at their best, which is on a large screen with an audience. This gives the audience a chance to meet the filmmakers and share their opinions and ideas. Films such as Golden Swans and Music of China provide a showcase for talented residents. This year, we are hoping to feature Wynmoor artists and potters as well. There is quite a lot of talent all around us at Wynmoor.

Grandparents

By Lil Miller

Being a Grandparent is such a Joy!! If you live that long to Enjoy!! Working hard to raise a family - keeping them in treasures they want and enjoy!

No time for you to play or enjoy the day!! It's too full of things to be done today!! Now that hectic time is gone and I am still alive!!

Schools - Graduations - Cars and playmates were so much more important now to date. I now have the time and heart to enjoy this second time around!

"Hi Grandma, look at my new car, I got a job, it wasn't so bad knowing you and Grandpa was there to pull me through. I am getting married - at our wedding, 'ol time songs you and Grandpa used to sing are being played."

Now when I get a call on a gloomy day, I am ready and able as I look upon the version of my two handsome Grandsons. I know those growing times were not forgotten!!

Ah yes - being a Grandparent is a special Joy that honor is given in "September" every year....flex those muscles and be ready!

Have a great day that will last a lifetime,
I remain, Lil Miller

Why Certain Things Need To Happen

By Terri Daniti

If I were to ask you what does a hot summer day, a roof being replaced, an elevator out of order, a delayed airplane flight, picking up someone at the airport, heavy traffic, a ring, and stopping at the grocery store have in common, or why did they even happen at all, could you give me an accurate answer? Well I can, and here it is...

It was another hot Florida day last August when my condo was having the roof replaced. It had been going on for days and the inconveniences were getting to everyone in the building. The smell of hot tar, not being able to park nearby in your usual spot, the noise. Everyone's patience was barely remaining and then adding to all of this, the elevator was now also out of order.

I learned about the elevator being out of order when I left my unit because my ex was flying into town to celebrate our daughter's birthday and I had volunteered to pick him up in the late morning. Unfortunately, I had been getting calls from him throughout the early day that his flight from New Jersey was now on its third delayed departure. Finally, it was able to depart but arriving at 4:30 PM which meant being in rush hour traffic returning here.

During the stop-and-go drive back here, I had asked him as a favor: would he go into Publix and pick me up a couple of cases of water and get them into my unit as it was difficult for me since I had to find a parking spot not nearby my building because of the roof repairs going on and he agreed. When I pulled up in front of the building to let him out with the waters, I noticed that one of the "seasoned" residents who lived on the third floor was seated on the bench and not looking well at all. I found a parking spot quickly and when I scooted up to her, I asked her if everything was okay as I thought she had been out before the elevator went out of order and now couldn't return to her unit. She sadly told me that wasn't the case and as she was speaking the repairman came past us and said the elevator was back up and running. Thank goodness.

I asked but she didn't want to come into my first-floor unit and she then began heartbreakingly telling me that knowing the elevator was out of order, she spent the afternoon going thru things and had collected a bagful of trash and sent it down the chute into the garbage bin. No big deal - right? Unfortunately, when she returned to her unit after a while, she looked at her hand and realized no longer was her wedding ring on her finger! She said she searched all around where she was working and when it couldn't be found, there she walked down the three flights of stairs - one step at a time - in the unbearable heat - because she wanted to retrieve the garbage bag from the bin to search if the ring had slipped into that tossed out bag. An aide that is familiar with some of the residents saw her and she tried to look into the bin and pulled out a few bags but none were the one being sought.

She then went on to tell me that her husband had passed 6 years ago and this was the first time in 60 years that the gold wedding band was off her finger. Now anyone that knows me would be sure at this point the tears would be flowing from my eyes - and they were. My heart was breaking for her and the loss feeling she was experiencing. She didn't say it but I couldn't help but feel myself that it must be like losing him all over again. She then asked me if I had a wire hanger as she wanted to reshape it and try to find the bag in the bin herself. I didn't have the heart to tell her that I didn't think it would work but I went into my unit to get one for her.

When I entered my unit, my ex saw how upset I was and when I explained the situation, he came back out with me and the hanger to try himself instead of her to find the bag. One was pulled out, "not that one" as it had to be a Publix bag. Then another, then another with the same results. Once again, the retrieving began and then we heard "that's the one" and I silently thanked every saint and angel I knew of for at least letting this bag be found. She was so joyful to have that tossed bag and couldn't thank my ex enough and wished him all kinds of blessings for his help. She did not want to come inside by me but go to her own place to begin her search not knowing what to expect but ever so hopeful. After about a half an hour, there was a knock on my front door and when opened, there she stood and, on her hand, the beloved wedding band was once again where it belonged.

Even now, a year later, I think if it had been a regular day, she probably wouldn't have done the cleanup and have a bag to toss into the garbage bin and the ring would not have been missing.

But it did happen... and had the roof not been being repaired, making me need to park far away and not being able to carry in myself water cases, or my ex's flight not being delayed, traffic taking a long time to return, stopping at Publix, the elevator out of order, she staying on the bench, my ex and I returning here instead of going straight to our daughter's, him being here and willing to try and search, would the ring have been found? I truly believe it would not have been found.

To me, if one of these things have not occurred or happened sooner or later then they did, the outcome could have been completely different. And this is when I wonder what is it - are we in control of our timing and destiny or is it Spirit or the Universe - or whatever you want to call it - leading us?

I Like Being Annoyed

By Peter Hardis

I don't know about you but I find there are plenty of things that annoy me. Strangely I like every annoyance that annoys me.

I think this began early in my life when my mother always told me, "Pete, never let anything ever annoy you."

I doubt very much that there are many of you who feel the same way as I do about being annoyed. In fact, you probably find annoyances that annoy you quite annoying.

Let me give you some of my most favorite annoyances that annoy me out of the hundreds of others that I also like being annoyed by:

- I get annoyed whenever someone greets me by saying, "Hi Nancy!"
- I get annoyed whenever my wife leaves the toilet seat DOWN.
- I get annoyed whenever a police officer gives me a ticket for going through a red light.
- I get annoyed whenever I dive into a swimming pool and there is no water in it.

Whaling And The Whaler's Art Of Scrimshaw

By Lawrence E. Correia

To understand how scrimshaw came into being, one must understand whaling and what it represents. Whaling is a business, an economic endeavor. Profits are sought from the products produced. A whale's cadaver was processed for its lamp oil, candles, medicine, perfume, machinery lubricant, and baleen was used as corset staves.

The first type of whaling was along the New England coast. Early European settlers went out in their small boats and harpooned passing right whales as they passed by Cape Cod and Nantucket Island. Later they expanded to deep sea whaling, where ships would go out for long spans of time hunting whales.

The Dutch controlled whaling during the 17th Century, followed by the English in the 18th Century. During the 19th Century, New Englanders led the way in whaling which peaked about 1850, with its center in New Bedford, Massachusetts.

Late in 1840, a Quaker whaling merchant, Charles W. Morgan, ordered a new vessel from shipbuilders Jethro and Zachariah Hillman of Ne' Bedford. On 21 July 1841, the Charles W. Morgan was launched and is the last survivor of a fleet of whalers that in 1841 numbered 736 vessels.

The Morgan was typical of the vessels built for use in the whaling industry. A whale ship had three primary functions: 1st, it was the mother ship to a fleet of six-man whaleboats, carried in davits along the rail. The whalers used these craft to hunt the whales. Harpoons were used to hook on to the whale and special lances were used to kill the animal. 2nd, the Whaler served as a factory, with a tryworks (furnace) for separating oil from the blubber. Whale blubber was first cut into wide sections and peeled from the carcass of the whale much the same way one would peel an orange in one continuous strip (called the blanket). On board ship, this blanket was cut into 4-foot-long sections called horse pieces and later, slashed into smaller sections known as books. These, in turn, would be put into the boilers of the tryworks. 3rd, whale ships acted as oil tankers, carrying home thousands of barrels of whale oil accumulated during the voyage.

A whale ship was cramped and living conditions were quite sparse. The captain and first mate had their own rooms, while the other four officers shared rooms and a galley (eating area) in the stem of the ship. The remaining 25 crew members bunked in cramped quarters in the bow (called a "fo'c'sle," forecastle). They had a bunk and a foot locker which they used as a table. Except for a few days and months of hard work actually hunting and extracting oil from whales, the rest of the 2-3-year voyage was spent in boredom. To pass the time away, sailors developed a form of art known as Scrimshaw.

SCRIMSHAW

While the carving of ivory and its use has developed over many thousands of years, the art of Scrimshaw has only developed in recent years. Scrimshaw is an art that dates back over 200 years to the whaling days of New England. It is accepted as one of the most important folk arts of American history. Using only a sharp pointed tool and India ink, American whalers of the 18th and 19th Centuries, intricately etched scenes of the voyage and hunt on a variety of ivories and whale bone. Almost all scenes depicted are of ocean-going vessels, the hunting and processing of whales, along with other daily ship board tasks carried out during the long and tedious voyage. Another important aspect of this art was that it was done in the most adverse conditions (poor lighting, cramped work space, pitching and rolling of the ship) which made this art so valuable. Much of the whale art and sketches were done on whale ivory which came primarily from the teeth of the Sperm whale and used to make jewelry and desk top pen holders with intricate scenes depicted. The bones of the whales were used to create tools used in cooking, baking, sewing, knitting and hair berets.

The demise of the whaling Era marked the end of Scrimshaw and by the beginning of the 1900's, it became a lost art. Though the art had depictions of American sailors at sea, the tradition had been lost aboard naval fleets. One sailor from World War II has often been accredited with the increase demand for Scrimshaw in the late 1950s -1960s. His name was John F. Kennedy. Raised on America's East coast with a nautical background, he was often pictured with his favorite Scrimshaw pieces. A highly educated area of the public started to show an interest in nautical antiques. They wanted to preserve the whaling history of Mystic, Conn., New Bedford, Mass, (the birthplace of Scrimshaw). A more informed public reached a consciousness of our diverse art and traditional heritages leading to a Renaissance of Scrimshaw.

In 1971, the United States Congress passed a law forbidding the importation of whale products into the United States. Thus, most Scrimshaw today is done on materials other than whale bone or ivory. Purchasers of Scrimshaw should be wary about the authenticity of much of the material offered on the market. Much of it is made of a fine plastic which makes it very difficult to tell the difference from the real thing.

Alexa

By Lil Miller

During the hurricane watch at my grandson's house, home alone listening to the hurricane news, a voice came through the lonely room, scaring a year's growth out of me. As I looked around to see what ghost was watching me, a voice said, "hi grandma! How you doing?" I looked in amaze as I had no phone, just me and the T.V. I answered like a good "Dobee." I answered back asking, "Where are you? You're scaring me!" The voice said, "we will be home soon." As I searched in vain, I asked myself, "where is this ghost talking to me from?"

Once an adult, twice a child. "Why did the chicken cross the road," someone asked. The reply was, "to get to the other side." Some good trivia came my way as I thought I would faint away. As my grandson and daughter walked in the room, I heard, "thanks Alexa for keeping Grandma company."

Ooh-la-la. Does anyone know who I am talking about? I just found this strange 'lil' friend, Alexa inside of the T.V. who can turn on lights, air conditioning, and even bake! It's time for lazy people to sleep and relax!

I have a housekeeper to help me each day. I think I'll replace her with Alexa, hot dog! I will ask my grandson to get me this 'lil' friend today!

Potential Census Scams and Keeping Thieves Away From Your Golf Cart Batteries

We are just a few months away from 2020 if you can believe that! Wait a minute, weren't we supposed to have flying cars by now? In all those movies I watched in the 80s, I could swear some of them were set in the 2020s and most of them had flying cars. Remember "Back To The Future 2?" It was my least favorite of the trilogy but they all had flying car and the movie was set in 2015, four years ago! Although, the Jetsons was set in the year 2062, so maybe we'll have flying cars by then.

Anyway, back to the point here. It's my understanding that the U.S. Census Bureau will start doing door-to-door surveys soon for the 2020 Census. The federal government mandates that we have a census count every 10 years. The bad guys use this as a prime opportunity to scam you, so I want to make sure you're aware of how to properly identify a Census Bureau employee in case one does knock at your door.

This comes straight from the Census Bureau's website:

- The Census representative should have an ID badge that contains their name, a photo, and an expiration date. It should also contain a watermark on it from the U.S. Department of Commerce.
- Look for an official bag the representative will be carrying with a U.S. Census Bureau logo on it. They may be carrying a laptop computer that should have the same logo.

- The rep should hand you a letter on official U.S. Census Bureau letterhead outlining the reason for the visit.

- They should only conduct their interviews between 9:00 AM and 9:00 PM. It's my understanding that they do work weekends so, if you get a knock on a Saturday or Sunday, it doesn't automatically mean it's a scam.

- If you ask, the representative should be able to provide you with their supervisor's name and phone number. They should also know where the Census Bureau's regional office is located and their boss's name.

The scammers may try to pose as Census Bureau representatives to steal your personal information, or distract you while someone else goes through your unattended purse or wallet, so it's important to know how to recognize a legitimate Census employee from a con artist.

As always, if it doesn't feel right, don't open the door. If they are a legitimate rep, they won't mind giving you the number to the field office so that you can verify their identity. Also, pay attention to the questions they ask you. If they try to fish details out of you like your credit card number or specifics about your bank account, that's a red flag that it's a scam or you may be talking to a thief.

Speaking of thieves, Wynmoor has experienced an uptick recently in stolen golf cart batteries. If you own a golf cart, we encourage you to keep a close eye on it. If you don't own a golf cart but somebody in your building does, help your neighbor help us keep an eye on it. If you see anyone suspicious near a golf cart, especially at night, please call 911 so the dispatchers can alert our officers. The thieves are targeting these golf cart batteries right now. We need you to be our eyes and ears out there for us and call 911 if you see anything suspicious.

Have a wonderful October and maybe someday, we'll finally see those flying cars!

Don't Chase 401(k) Mix During Market Drops

As you're well aware, we've seen some sudden and sizable drops in the financial markets in 2019. While market volatility is nothing new, the recent plunges happened during a period of general political and economic unease. Still, it can be harmful to overreact to such events – especially if it means making radical changes to your 401(k).

And yet, many people do just that. During market downturns, investors often move money from their 401(k)'s stock accounts into perceived safer accounts, such as those primarily containing bonds or other fixed-income securities. This move may result in reduced volatility on your 401(k) statements, and if that's all you want, you might be satisfied. But you do need to realize the cost involved – specifically, fixed-income investments will not provide the same rate of return that equities (stocks) can. So, if you liquidate some of your equity holdings, you may slow the growth potential of your 401(k), which, in turn, could slow your progress toward your long-term financial goals. Furthermore, if you get rid of substantial amounts of your equities when their price is down, you won't be able to benefit from owning them when their value goes up again. In other words, you'll be on the sidelines during the next market rally.

Here's the key issue: A 401(k) or similar employer-sponsored retirement plan is a long-term investment account, whereas moves made in reaction to market drops are designed to produce short-term results. In other words, these types of actions are essentially incompatible with the ultimate objective of your 401(k).

Of course, when the market is volatile, you may want to do something with your 401(k), but, in most cases, you're far better off by sticking with the investment mix that's appropriate for your goals, risk tolerance and time horizon. However, this doesn't mean you should never adjust your 401(k)'s portfolio. In fact, you may well want to make some changes under these circumstances:

• You're nearing retirement – If you are nearing retirement, you may need to prepare your 401(k) for future downturns. After all, you don't want to have to start taking withdrawals when your portfolio is down. So, if you are within, say, five years of retirement, you may need to shift some, but certainly not all, of your assets from growth-oriented vehicles to income-producing ones.

• Your goals have changed – Even when you're many years away from retirement, you probably have an idea of what that lifestyle will look like. Perhaps you plan to travel for several months of the year or purchase a vacation home in a different climate. These are expensive goals that may require you to invest somewhat aggressively in your 401(k). However, you could change your mind. If you were to scale back your plans – perhaps more volunteering, less traveling – you might be able to afford to “step off the gas” a little and invest somewhat more conservatively in your 401(k), though you will always need a reasonable percentage of growth-oriented investments.

By responding to factors such as these, rather than short-term market declines, you can get the most from your 401(k), allowing it to become a valuable part of your retirement income.

October Is National Breast Cancer Awareness Month

Everyone knows that a family history of breast cancer increases your risk of inheriting the disease. But, lifestyle can also play a role. By making some changes in your daily life, you can significantly lower your personal risk level.

According to the National Breast Cancer Foundation, risk factors for breast cancer include diet and lifestyle factors: lack of exercise, a diet high in saturated fat, and more than two alcoholic drinks per day can all increase your chances of getting the disease. Being obese or overweight also increases the risk, so it's a good idea to follow a healthy meal plan and exercise regularly.

Developing an early detection plan is another effective way to take your healthcare into your own hands and possibly save your own life. The National Breast Cancer Foundation advises the following early detection plan:

- Beginning at age 20: Perform breast self-exams and look for any signs of change.
- Age 20 to 39: Schedule clinical breast exams every three years.
- By the age of 40: Have a baseline mammogram and Annual clinical breast exams.
- Ages 40 to 49: Have a mammogram every one to two years depending on previous findings.
- Ages 50 and older: Have a mammogram every year. (Half of all women diagnosed are over the age of 65).

You can create an early detection plan at the National Breast Cancer Foundation's website. They will provide you with reminders and instructions for monthly self-breast exams and reminders for a clinical exam once every three years. You can also start a Personal Health Record to keep track of your appointments, test results, and self-exams over the years.

If you've never had a breast exam before, now is the time to start. National Mammography Day is Oct 22nd. Many cities have a mobile mammography van. Check the Universities and medical centers near you.

From The Other Side Of The Couch

By Merri Goldberg

Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur

Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur are the High Holy Days of the Jewish religion. Rosh Hashanah marks the anniversary of the biblical story of creation of the first humans, Adam and Eve. This year, it begins on the evening of September 29th and continues for two days. It is considered the Jewish New Year.

Yom Kippur begins on October 8th and continues through October 9th, marking a time of thoughtful reflection, thinking deeply about the past year, and making very personal amends for your own wrongdoings during the year. It is a time of reflection, prayer, and repentance. It is a time of awe.

As ever, my column takes on a note of curiosity, even at this most sacred time. I have noted the many empty seats at some of the weekly services and thought about the overflowing crowds on the High Holy Days. Why? What might draw people to synagogue at this time? I had my own ideas but turned to some of the experts with my question.

Rabbi Bux Baum is the lecturer back East for Kabbalah classes. He answers this question in the following way: "I think that this time of year is so packed with energy and Holiness that all Jews, even those who are disconnected, feel it and want to be a part in some way."

We are lucky to have two esteemed Rabbis who live in Wynmoor and I asked their thoughts. Rabbi Stuart Berman had a stellar and varied career. He had a pulpit practice and was a Rabbi Emeritus at Temple Sinai in Forest Hills, New York. He lectured widely in religious and secular venues, including cruise ships. He was also a Chaplain for the NYPD. He stated, "often people come for these three days to wipe their slate clean and start over. There are ten days to think deeply about your life, to look back and make changes and amends. There are ten days of penitence and a chance to do better." He and I agreed that there is also an element of tradition. Feeling roots, memories of family and past holidays show how meaningful they were to us while growing up. Powerful childhood memories may be a part of the holidays. In the present, beyond the spiritual, there is also a time between services with family and friends where connecting with one another is significant.

Rabbi David Spitz, another Wynmoor resident, was an Army Chaplain for two years, both stateside and in Korea. He led congregations in North Hollywood, California, Munster, Indiana, Chicago, Illinois, Cleveland, Ohio, and Rochester, New York. He was a Hospital Chaplain for 26 years working with the Veterans Administration in Chicago. Rabbi Spitz sees the holidays as an important spiritual renewal. He talks about tradition and a return to Jewish ways. He sees the Kaddish (memorial prayers for the deceased) as a reawakening. He also talks about getting together with other Jews, not only over prayers, but also for community involvement and traditional food. Like Rabbi Berman and myself, he talks about one's childhood and the powerful memories associated with these holidays.

A friend of mine, Donna Goldman stated it beautifully, "for some who don't come much during the year, they feel the need at holiday time. It is a personal need for fulfillment - peace with yourself and with G-d."

For me, the holidays are all of the above. I feel a strong sense of community with people who I don't see when I am in Florida. I feel a deep sense of self reflection and repentance for some of the deeds of the past year.

I pray to be a better person in the next year. I feel a certain awe in being in G-d's presence that is somehow a little different than the rest of the year. The songs and prayers I recited from my childhood; I repeat them again. I will always remember the sense of well-being I felt as a young child, holding my grandfather's hand and helping him to Schul. Memories.

SUPPER CLUB

By Lynne List

Orders have been pouring in since our email flyer and order form was sent out in September to former Dinner Theatre attendees. There will be two evening performances of the show, Midlife Crisis, The Musical, one on Thursday, March 19th and one on Friday, March 20th.

This comedy pokes fun at midlife maladies experienced during the Golden Years such as the frustrations of mammograms, love handles, proctology exams, etc. Clever songs celebrate forgetfulness, reading glasses, and much more. Both men and women are targeted in the witty vignettes. The musical is produced by the professional Curtain Call Playhouse troupe.

The show, with dinner preceding it, will take place in the West Wing. Tickets are $35 per person which includes tax and gratuity. Tables are assigned on a first come/first served basis and can hold up to 9 people. You may purchase from 1 to 9 tickets.

Dinner starts with a glass of wine (BYOB if you want more) followed by a salad, an entrée of Salmon or Chicken Marsala, rice pilaf, baby carrots and an éclair for dessert. Beverages and rolls are included. A sugar-free dessert is available if ordered in advance. Old Florida Caterers will cater the meal which will be served at 5:30 PM. The show starts at approximately 7:30 PM.

Those of you who received the order form have until the end of November to purchase your tickets in advance of the general public. If you wish to be added to the email list, send your email address and your name to LLIST@juno.com

Please write "Supper Club" in the subject line. For those of you who are not on the email list, the order form will be in the carousel in the Country Club Library in early December and you can take advantage of obtaining your tickets via mail order until the end of January. After that, starting on February 3rd, tickets will be sold in the Country Club Library every Monday and Wednesday afternoon from 1:00 PM - 4:00 PM.

Only once a year do you have Dinner Theatre at Wynmoor. Imagine a wonderful dinner, a professional show, all of this in Wynmoor so you don't have to travel, and all for only $35 per person. Don't miss out.

Andros 1705

By Marilyn Stahl

The Summer is gone but here in Wynmoor, we continue to enjoy our beautiful weather.

We hope those of us who celebrated the Jewish New Year enjoyed the holidays with family and friends. Of course, happiness and good health is wished for all.

Ellen and Les Resneck will be celebrating their 48th Wedding Anniversary on October 21st with a cruise to the Bahamas. Happy sailing and continued good health to Ellen.

Gloria Patane is going to New York to visit her son. "I miss him."

Adrienne and Michael Mintz attended their granddaughter's Bat Mitzvah in Indiana. They had a wonderful time. We wish Michael a speedy recovery after his hip replacement surgery.

Our lunch bunch had a fun time at J. Marks Restaurant. It was a nice time and a nice turnout catching up with our residents' comings and goings.

Cythia Love, Judith Gips and myself, Marilyn, joined Aruba Village on their overnight trip to the West Coast. It was a fun and enjoyable time for all.

We can't end our news from 1705 without thanking Angela Papa, Director and ably assisted by Angel Ortiz for their expertise in keeping our building sparkling. Our Director and assistant are an asset to our building.

We meet on the first Tuesday evening of each month at 7:30 PM in Ballroom C at the Clubhouse.

Our September meeting was cancelled. However, we still have to share our thoughts on the "Silent Patient," by Alex Michaelides, our September book choice.

Wynmoor Amateur Radio Club

By Gerry Stoloff

The WARC meets every Friday morning at 9:00 AM in the Multi-Purpose Room near the main pool and we meet all year round. At 10:00 AM, we move to the "Ham Shack," located in room #118 on the West end of the Administration Building. Visiting Amateur Operators are welcome to operate from our station, just be sure to bring a copy of your "ticket" (license) along with you. For further information, please contact Gerry Stoloff, WA3HDI at gpstoloff@comcast.net or call 954-973-4899.

Wynmoor Hurricane Emergency Net

By Gerry Stoloff

As of this writing, we're on alert to see if Hurricane Dorian results in our first emergency activation. Although we hope that Wynmoor's damage is too minor to require our services, we're preparing for all possibilities. That's why we train weekly. Each Wednesday evening, we're giving lessons in radio discipline and emergency service. Remember, Hurricane Season doesn't end until November (or even later)!

We're still short of people to fully cover every village. Our goal is to have at least one operator in each village, ideally more than one, so that they can share the coverage. The commitment we ask is to check in most Wednesday nights for 10-15 minutes for radio training and to be available to serve after the event of an actual weather emergency.

You don't need prior experience in using a CB radio. We'll teach you how to connect it up in your car and the weekly meetings will provide experience in proper communications procedures.

If you'd like to join us or you're a previous operator, please contact Gerry Stoloff at 954-973-4899 or come to the Country Club Clock Tower any Wednesday evening at 6:30 PM.

It won't be many more days and we will start seeing our Snowbird friends returning to Wynmoor and joining the Tuesday tournaments. If you want to find out more about the WLGA, please contact President, Barbara Hyer at 732-284-1002.

A Serendipitous Day In The Small Vero Beach Art Museum

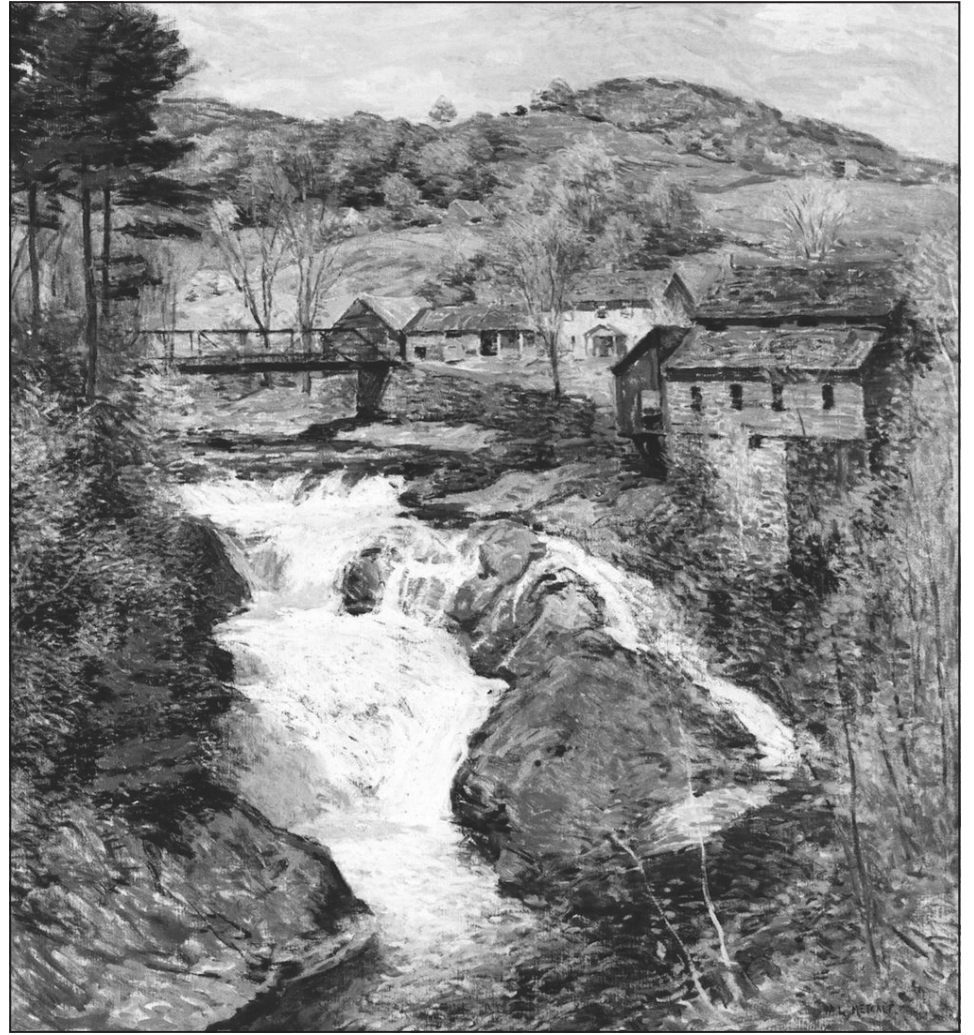

By Barry Isaac

Recently in late August, I took a long two-and-a-quarter hour ride to Vero Beach. I visited the small, but delightful art museum in Vero Beach. This art museum's permanent collection emphasizes 20th Century American paintings and art. It has fine early 20th Century American paintings by Willard Metcalf, "Falls," fine American Impressionism, Edward Redfield, "Deleware Valley," fine New Hope School American Impressionism, Edward Potthast, "Baby Carriage On Beach, American Impressionism, Ernest Lawson, "Early Winter," and Joseph Stella, "Joy of Living," among others.

It has fine paintings and works of art from the second half of the 20th by highly respected American painters. Favorites of mine were Richard Estes' "Amsterdam Avenue and 96th Street, New York City," Asya Resnikov's fine video, "Rocking Art History," Cuban Rene Portacarrero's "Cathedral in Red," and Jim Dine's "Red March Forward."

I appreciated the charming atmosphere of this art museum and the helpfulness of its staff. Parking at this art museum in the pleasant Riverside Drive area of Vero Beach is free. I also liked the fine temporary exhibit of Astronomical Photography which ended in late September.

The Planet Does Not Need More Successful People

The planet desperately needs more peacemakers, healers, restorers, storytellers and lovers of all kinds.

Dear Reader,

This month's article is dedicated to my mom who just turned 81! She is the most resourceful woman I know. She never goes anywhere without her full toolbox, complete with spackling paste, sewing kit and enough books and correspondences to keep her busy for days (or rather, sleepless nights). She lives an independent life full of morning gardening, daily walks to Winn-Dixie and volunteering at a church where she pushes carts full of donated food to receiving client's cars. She personally delivers food to several families who are homebound. In addition to attending a bible study and church every Sunday, she takes a variety of classes from Zentangle (focused doodling to create appealing artwork) to genealogy. She has committed herself to preserving our family history by personally gathering everyone's details of our lives and sharing them with one another.

Years ago, she joined "Toastmasters" to overcome her fear of public speaking. She became so adept at speaking to an audience that when an opportunity arose to be in a Radio show with a live audience, she auditioned and landed a crucial comedic role. The reason I did not celebrate with her on her actual birthday is because the radio show will be performing at a Nursing Home and space is limited to just the aging attendees and the "young" performers like my mom!

One of the things I really appreciate about my mom is her dedication to having the most possible fun on any given day. Like all of us, she has her list of to-dos' as well as the ongoing chores of running a household, caring for her wide circle of friends and keeping up with her bills and shopping. If an invitation of any appeal comes up that sounds fun and interesting, she is known to stop whatever she is doing and dash to the party. I admire someone who has her priorities straight!

The last couple of years my mom has been complaining of feeling tired. Like many people of her age (and decades younger), regular long uninterrupted sleep has become a challenge. She's read every book on the subject and she has taken many over-the-counter and prescription sleep aids but without any lasting success. So, she often starts her days at four in the morning and then wonders why at four in the afternoon, she feels like she needs a nap. She has been to several doctors who run numerous tests only to tell her NOTHING

IS WRONG WITH HER! They do imply she has not made peace with the fact that if you're lucky enough to enter your 8th decade, you may have to slow down!

I am not a doctor, but I believe my mother suffers from "FOMO" (Fear Of Missing Out). She is so devoted to living life to its fullest, she just doesn't want to pass an invitation by. She loves experiencing life by being right in the midst of it all! I, on the other hand, relate more to the acronym, "JOMO" (Joy of Missing Out). I've become completely content to be home baking for my family or even going for solo beach walks.

Yet, I so adore how my mom embraces life! I so appreciate how she shows up for all of our children's events and how she takes such an interest in what we are up to.

She is known as the best foot massager in our family. My children have all enjoyed their little feet massaged by grandma as they tell her what is new in their lives! About a decade ago, she introduced us to her new super-sized Paraffin hot wax machine. Everybody got in on it, enjoying not only the hot wax experience but the big souvenir wax balls they got to keep!

Just last week, I was bragging to my mom that I'm getting good at hanging things with my new drill. I told her I used to leave holes in the walls when I didn't measure properly and I always intended to go back and fill those gaping holes but I just never did and they never seemed to bother me. That's when my mom confessed. She told me she had filled my holes. I was in shock as I know we don't even own any spackle paste. That's when she told me she keeps spackle paste in her toolbox. I suddenly got goose bumps all over me. How many other areas of my life had my mom been silently spackling? From my childhood to my adulthood, perhaps that's what moms do best. They spackle us. They smooth things over, they fill the void, they make it all better.

Happy Birthday Mom! May we all be blessed with someone who silently spackles for us!

With love, Diana

Out of State Legal Documents: Are They Valid in Florida

By Martin Zevin, Attorney

As many of our Snowbirds come back to Florida, a common question is: do my legal papers from another state work in Florida? With some exceptions, the answer is no.

There are three main documents that protect you in Florida if you become incapacitated: Designation of Health Care Surrogate, Written Declaration, also known as Living Will and the Durable Power of Attorney. Other states may have different names for these documents, but their substance is similar: you are designating one or more persons to take care of making medical decisions for you if you are unable to communicate and to take care of your legal and financial affairs if you become incapacitated. Every state is like a different country. Each state has its own laws and regulations regarding these three documents. The law in Florida is very clear regarding language, required references to specific Florida Statutes, HIPAA compliant language for the Health Care Surrogate and requirements for initialing specific powers for which the Durable Power of Attorney will apply. It is unlikely that you can find online the appropriate language that is necessary to create documents that will be effective in Florida. Our current Durable Power of Attorney document is 26 pages to be sure that it conforms to the new Florida law. If you have similar documents from another State, it is likely that they will not be valid in Florida.

Therefore, for my Snowbird clients who divide their time primarily between two states, I recommend a set of documents for Florida and another set for the other state. This will provide protection should you become incapacitated in either state. You will not have to worry if your out-of-state documents will be honored.

If you have a Last Will and Testament that has been properly executed in another state, and you die in Florida, that Will is valid and can be filed in the Florida Probate Courts. However, it becomes much more time consuming, costly and difficult to probate an out-of-state Will in Florida. A Commissioner in the other state needs to be appointed by the Florida Judge. The Commissioner must take the sworn testimony of one of the witnesses to the Will before it can be admitted to the Florida Probate Court. Sometimes, particularly if the Will was done a while ago, the witnesses cannot be located. If you have a Florida Will and it is properly executed and notarized, these extra requirements and Court Orders will not be necessary. Therefore, to make it easier, faster and less expensive to probate, you should consider making a new Florida Will, particularly if you are now a Florida resident.

If you wish to avoid probate on real estate that you own in Florida and in another state, it is a good idea to consider a Florida Revocable Living Trust and a Deed to transfer your Florida property into the Trust. When you return to the other state, have a lawyer do a Deed transferring that property to the Florida Trust. This will avoid two separate probates in two states upon your death.

This is just a brief summary of the law and why it is advisable to have Florida documents. I always offer a free consultation to review your current documents, whether from Florida or another state, and give specific advice regarding your circumstances.

Please feel free to call me for a free personal or phone consultation regarding any issue pertaining to Wills, Trusts, Deeds, Probate, Power of Attorney or Health Care Surrogate. I am also available for a free consultation regarding any issue pertaining to personal injury claims or car insurance coverage. Call me at 954-569-4878. My address is 3275 W. Hillsboro Blvd., Suite 204, Deerfield Beach, Florida 33442 (just East of Powerline Road). My web site is www.martinzevinpa.com and my e-mail address is martinzevin@netzero.com

HISTORY CORNER

By Philip Edwards

JIANG QING: ONLY FOLLOWING MAO ZEDONG'S ORDERS

Jiang Qing was born in 1914 and given the name Li Shumen. Throughout her 77 years, she adopted seven different names before becoming Chairman Mao's wife and The First Lady of China. She was beautiful, talented, manipulative, and ruthless.

In her early twenties, Jiang had been divorced twice and gone through several lovers. She studied literature and drama in university and worked as an actress. While teaching a drama course in university, she met Mao Zedong. He just returned from the "long march" which was the communist army retreat from central China to the rural areas in Western and Northern China. Mao and Jing began a relation even though Mao's third wife, who had followed him on the long march, was desperately ill in the hospital.

Leaders of the Communist Party frowned on the relationship while Mao's second wife was still alive and actively discouraged Mao from furthering his relationship with Jiang. Still working for the Communist Party, Jiang was able to maintain her semi-secret affair with Mao. After Mao's third wife died, he married Jiang much to the displeasure of the party. The party leaders only accepted the marriage in 1938 on the condition that Jiang would not be active in the party for thirty years.

The Chinese communist leadership went through drastic changes after 1940. The Great Step Forward, introduced by Mao in 1958, attempted to move China from an agrarian economy to a communal industrialized economy. The result was a devastating famine that claimed the lives of thirty to fifty million Chinese. The communist party was in disarray as hostilities erupted between the factions.

To gain leverage and power over the leadership of the party, Mao shifted to a more radical position and introduced the Cultural Revolution. Jiang Qing took an active role in the government by being named the first vice chairwoman of the seventeen-member Central Cultural Revolutionary Committee. Essentially, she was head of the propaganda element of the party. Young radicals were encouraged to harass and commit acts of violence against anyone or group that disagreed with Mao's brand of communism. Mobs attacked those educated in Western thought and stripped them of positions, possession, and in some cases, their lives. Revolutionaries targeted and massacred Muslims, Koreans, Mongols, and Chinese minorities. The violence generated during the ten-year Cultural Revolution saw between five hundred thousand - two million people murdered and over thirty million persecuted.

The central power of the government rested with the Gang of Four. Jiang Qing was the only female and she used her role as propaganda minister to control the plays, operas, plays, books, educational material, and the press.

Mao and Jiang separated in 1973, but she kept her dominance and position in the government. When Mao died in 1976, a counter-revolutionary group challenged the gang of four. The four were arrested and tried for treason. The tribunal sentenced two to prison, but they sentenced Jiang and Zhang Chunqiao to death. In the end, Jiang and Zhang were given life sentences in prison. While the others confessed their guilt, Jiang refused to admit her guilt, claiming that she was only following Mao's orders. After she contracted throat cancer, Jiang was released to house arrest at her daughter's home. In 1984, she hung herself.

The Chinese do not remember her fondly. Comments can be made at chooserrightly.com

City Matters

By Commissioner Mikkie Belvedere

Happy birthday and a happy anniversary to all celebrating this month, including my daughter Doreen.

October brings some religious Jewish holidays: October 9th is Yom Kippur, a day of atonement and forgiveness. It is required to reach out, apologize and seek forgiveness from those we harmed or insulted. The night after Yom Kippur is considered a holiday also and it is customary to eat a festive holiday meal. October 13th is Sukkot.

For our Indian residents, the Annual holiday of Diwali, known as the "Festival Of Lights" and celebrating good over evil, will take place on Sunday, October 27th.

Some other wacky holidays you might enjoy celebrating are: October 1st: "International Day For The Elderly," October 4th: "International Smile Day," October 5th: World Teacher Day" (thank a teacher today), October 24th: "United Nations Day," and of course, don't forget Halloween on October 31st.

The city is also planning several events: October 3rd at 6:30 PM: Lecture series: "Ellis Island, The Immigrant Experience," October 11th at 7:00 PM, come enjoy our "Concert In The Park" series located at the Community Center on 1100 Lyons Road. A Jimmy Buffet Tribute band will be performing. Also, on October 24th at 5:30 PM in the Commission Chambers (4800 Copans Road), come enjoy a Lecture entitled "Do The Right Thing," a program dedicated to honoring young students for doing the right thing presented by the Coconut Creek Police Department. The new city budget goes into effect on October 1st.

Remember to recycle: plastic bottles with a screw top, cans, and corrugated boxes only. Do not recycle plastic bags, glass, milk containers, newspapers or mail. Contaminated recycle containers could end up in the dump. Tell your neighbors, tell your friends. We pay for recycling even if the container is contaminated.

Have a great day and keep smiling.

I can be reached at 954-803-7696. Let me hear from you. Suggestions and requests are welcome.

On The Tennis Courts

By Arlene Eisenberger

Summertime in Florida is still active, maybe with fewer people, but that is what occurs this time of year. Tennis is played more in the mornings as the late morning and afternoons are just unbearable. Singles or doubles games take approximately 45 minutes. Each set is completed when one team reaches six games (but must win by two games or play a tie breaker).

"Breakfast At Wimbledon" was celebrated at the courts. This event was put together by Bob Long. The players all wore the traditional white tennis outfits, played games on the courts and enjoyed a light breakfast.

The Wimbledon Open takes place in England and is one of the most watched competitive games in the Tennis world. The second attraction is the U.S. Open is played in Flushing, New York for two weeks which ended on September 8th.

Hope to see many of you back in Wynmoor once the cooler weather has brought you back. Keep playing. It keeps you young. See you at the courts.

Sand wedge -52-58 degrees: 11 iron

Gap or a wedge 48 -52 degrees: 10.5 iron

Pitching wedge - 44-48 degrees: 10 iron

Then you have the rest of your irons in numbers 9,8,7,6,5,4, etc.

The hybrid clubs are wonderful to replace your long irons and middle irons. The hybrid looks like a combination of iron and metal woods with lofts similar to your irons but actually play a bit longer than their counterpart conventional clubs. Some sets have hybrids replacing the 2,3,4,5, and 6 iron.

The hybrid 3,4, and 5 can be a good choice for your second shot on most holes.

The chipper is a short-game specialty club. It is more upright like a putter and the loft of a 7 iron. With respect to the greens at Wynmoor that are uphill and have a pin in the back portion of the green, it is an excellent choice. It is also a great choice for hitting a “bump and run” from any distance. It is more upright so you can employ a swing similar to your putting stroke.

The complimentary short-game classes will begin in October on weekdays in the morning. Come on out and tune up your putting, pitching and chipping.

Private lessons are by appointment. Group classes are Monday through Friday. For more info. about classes, call Kevin Battersby at 954-444-1031.

To The Insider:

My husband and I read your cover article in the September, 2019 issue of the Insider with tears in our eyes...tears of both happiness and sadness. Needless to say, we are ever so happy for those grandparents and grandchildren who have each other.

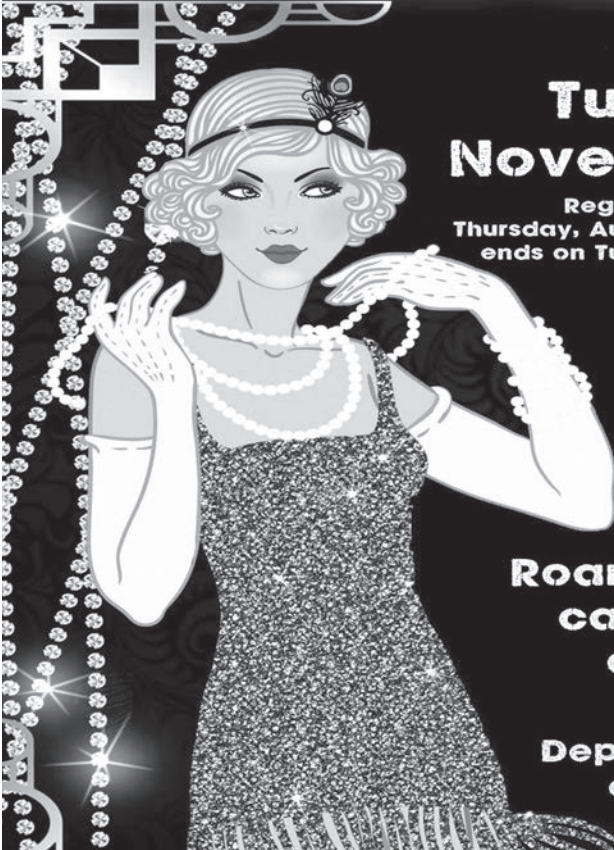

Our situation is different. I became a grandmother when I was 52 years of age. (I am 74 now.) We have a granddaughter who is age 20 and another granddaughter who will be age 22 soon. They no longer know us, nor we, them. Their father (my son) passed away 17 years ago and we have, basically, been kept away from the two daughters he left.

We are still, to this day, working on a solution to what we consider to be a serious problem. We haven't given up hope.

So, we know how wonderful it is to be a grandparent. We do enjoy our relatives' and friends' grandchildren and we will enjoy National Grandparents' Day.

Dear Friends,

We are nearing the end of the Hurricane Season, but this does not mean that we should become complacent. It is imperative that we continue to be prepared and know that early preparation is vital. October, however, is nationally recognized as Breast Cancer Awareness month. It is estimated that in the United States, 1 in 8 women and 1 in 883 men will develop invasive breast cancer over their lifetime. Unfortunately, Florida has the second-highest cancer burden in the Nation and, since 2011, cancer is the leading cause of death for Floridians, surpassing heart disease.

The Florida Department of Health states that mammography is the most effective method of early breast cancer detection, as it can identify cancer several years before physical symptoms develop. According to the American Cancer Society, getting regular screening tests is the most reliable way to find breast cancer early. They also provide screening guidelines for women at average or high risk of breast cancer. They are ultimately suggesting that women should know their breasts and report changes of size, symmetry, or skin appearance to their doctor. The Florida Breast and Cervical Cancer Early Detection Program assist Floridians with cancer and screenings are recommended by doctors. Should you meet the eligibility requirements, the screenings can be either free or a low cost. Please call your County Health Department or American Cancer Society National Hotline at 1-800-227-2345 to get more information on the program. For the Florida Department of Health in Broward County, call 954-762-3812 and for the Florida Department of Health in Palm Beach County, call 561-840-4500.

The American Cancer Society will be hosting its “Making Strides Walks” around the Nation to raise breast cancer awareness. At their root, these events are noncompetitive 3 to 5 mile walks for survivors, family members, supporters, or anyone that has been touched by breast cancer.

Dear Dr. Joy...

By Joy Berke Sanchez, PhD

Getting Out Of Your Comfort Zone

Some months ago, I wrote about change and how difficult it is for us to try something new. This could take the form of thinking, behaving, or any other modality that would open up new ways of being to us.

So, after writing that article, I started thinking about ways that I could also do this. What would be totally new and different for me to tackle? Physically, I thought all bets were off. My body isn't what it once was and after a pretty tough year, health wise, I didn't want to hurt myself. So, I eliminated buying a bicycle or getting back on roller blades (which is what caused my current knee problem twenty years ago). I did try chair yoga and found that acceptable and useful but it wasn't as far out of my comfort zone as I wanted. Since I had done yoga before and rode a bicycle and hiked, etc., I looked for something really out there for me.

As I was thinking about this, I heard about an abstract art class that was starting through an organization I belonged to. Immediately, I knew that this was it. I had never worked with paint, canvases, brushes, etc. and I must say, I had no particular interest in doing so. This was the stretch I was looking for. I signed up and paid my money. There was no turning back. I received a list of supplies I would need and headed for the art supply store. I was definitely a fish out of water! I handed my list to the young girl working there and followed her around the store, completely bewildered. In a peculiar way, I was nervous and excited. Looking at all the items she was putting in my shopping cart, was both scary and thrilling. Would I even have the nerve to put the first blob of paint on my new canvas? The next day would be my first ever art class.

To make this more understandable, I have always been the kind of person who would assess my ability to do something before I tried to do it. I did a lot of what I knew I could do well. I started acting at about 4 years old because my Aunt belonged to a theater group and they needed a child. Her own daughter was too old so there I was. Since everyone thought I was so cute and I was able to read and learn lines, acting became something that never intimidated me. I have been in theater groups ever since, including Wynmoor's, "Actors on Stage Club." I have been writing since I was very young also. I studied psychology since I was 12 because I had a mentally ill cousin who I desperately wanted to "cure." Becoming a clinical psychologist was natural to me. But ART?

I took a deep breath as I entered the classroom. I knew the teacher and many of the students were warm and welcoming. Right at my station, was an easel. Oh boy! I was going to become an artist.

I won't bore you with the details but it was wonderful and amazing. I was in an entirely different universe. Being a mostly left-brained person, I was entering the world of the right-brain. Since the class was abstract, I didn't actually have to make anything recognizable which made it easier for me.

I had so much fun, not caring about how I was doing or what anyone would say about my work, including me. I'm so looking forward to next week.

So, this is what my article was referring to months back. I'm so glad that I followed my own advice and would like to give you a little shove in that direction as well. Open up new worlds where you are a bit out of your comfort zone. Try something new that makes you feel like a child again. Let me know what happens. Email me at JoyB212@aol.com

Livin'

By Helen M. Smith

*Each day I'm alive and still knowing
One day I'll be gone
But the world will keep going,
Others will come to take my place
Yet I hope that times will not erase
The wonderful moments I have given
Through the years I was here
And doing some livin'*

The Birth Of A New Generation

By Lil Miller

*The day has come when a grandma can say
It is going to be cold in Florida this March day!
Ah! Grandma you're getting old!
Okay my grandson have it your way.
As dawn breaks for another day!
A morning call came my way,
To say hi grandma, my place was so warm
last night,
I decided Florida is the place to stay on a Cold winters night of 40 degrees!*

*I forgot to cover my buns and legs
And nature's message to me was creaking and groaning
To get out of bed that day!*

*It gave me delight for my grandson to say,
I will take grandpa's old flannel bottoms any day!*

Love you!

New Home Purchase in 2019

All qualified Florida residents are entitled to a Homestead Exemption on their homes, condominiums, co-op apartments, and certain mobile home lots. To qualify for Homestead Exemption, you must own and make the property your permanent residence as of January 1st in which you are applying for this valuable exemption. Pursuant to Florida Statute, all assessments and exemptions are based upon the status of the property on January 1st. If you purchased and/or made the property your permanent residence in 2019 and have not applied for Homestead Exemption, you can apply for 2020 exemptions at any time. There is no need to wait until 2020. You can easily apply online at www.bcpa.net or at one of our many outreach events. To view where our representatives will be assisting residents with filing for exemptions, please visit our event calendar at <http://bcpa.net/Events.asp>

If you purchased your home in 2019, the tax bill you will receive from the Broward County Tax Collector is for the 2019 tax year. If the previous owners of your new home were entitled to and received Homestead Exemption or any other exemption on January 1, 2019, you may have inherited their exemptions on your 2019 property tax bill. Florida Statutes require these exemptions be removed for 2020 and the "Save Our Homes Value" be brought up to the 2020 just value of your property. This will often result in an increase in your 2020 property taxes so it is important you apply for 2020 Homestead Exemption and any other exemptions you may qualify for.

Your new 2020 Homestead Exemption will be reflected next year on all 2020 property records, notices and tax bills. Should you have any questions regarding your new exemption, please contact our Customer Service and Exemption Department at 954-357-6830.

Broward County Tax Collector's Office to Mail Tax Bills in November:

The Property Appraiser's Office does not set or collect property taxes. We simply assess property and grant exemptions to qualified individuals. The Broward County Tax Collector's Office will mail the 2019 property tax bills by November 1, 2019. If your escrow company requests your tax bill, the Tax Collector will send you a courtesy copy of the bill in mid-November. All property tax bills are posted to their website at <https://broward.county-taxes.com/public> on November 1st. Should you have any questions for their office, please contact them at 954-831-4000.

If my office can ever be of assistance to you, please do not hesitate to contact me directly at 954-357-6904 or by email at martykiar@bcpa.net
